

Growing Joyful Stewards in our Congregation

of stewardships is telling stories of faith to one other. By sharing these stories, we rediscover how God's love is active in our lives and from this, our generosity grows. As our generosity grows, the feast of God also grows.

Stewardship is also about showing the feast that God has set before us. When we receive God's gifts and share them, we share the feast of God. The more we share, the grander the feast becomes.

There are many ways you can share this feast—with the world's poor through the ELCIC's Global Hunger and Development Appeal (GHDA), with our students by supporting our Campus Ministries, with your community by giving generously to your congregations' own mission and outreach work, and with people you meet in your own life. As the feast grows, the Gospel is shared and people encounter the source of this feast—God.

Each Sunday we gather to celebrate the great feast which Christ invites us to. It is the feast of God's love, which is revealed in Christ's life, death and resurrection. It is a feast which we experience in our lives together and we are called to share it with the world.

God is alive in our midst, welcoming us to God's great feast. Yet, we can easily forget this. This is why an important part

This year be a steward of God's feast by being a steward of:

- The gifts which are the people God has called together to form God's Church.
- God's love and compassion.
- Courage and encouragement.
- God's feast by sharing your stories, your time, your talent and your treasure.

ELCIC
*In Mission
for Others*

Take the time to talk with your pastor about how you can generously give of the gifts you have been given so that God's feast may be shared with other.

For more info go to: www.elcic.ca/stewardship

Growing Joyful Stewards in our Congregation

of stewardships is telling stories of faith to one other. By sharing these stories, we rediscover how God's love is active in our lives and from this, our generosity grows. As our generosity grows, the feast of God also grows.

Stewardship is also about showing the feast that God has set before us. When we receive God's gifts and share them, we share the feast of God. The more we share, the grander the feast becomes.

There are many ways you can share this feast—with the world's poor through the ELCIC's Global Hunger and Development Appeal (GHDA), with our students by supporting our Campus Ministries, with your community by giving generously to your congregations' own mission and outreach work, and with people you meet in your own life. As the feast grows, the Gospel is shared and people encounter the source of this feast—God.

Each Sunday we gather to celebrate the great feast which Christ invites us to. It is the feast of God's love, which is revealed in Christ's life, death and resurrection. It is a feast which we experience in our lives together and we are called to share it with the world.

God is alive in our midst, welcoming us to God's great feast. Yet, we can easily forget this. This is why an important part

This year be a steward of God's feast by being a steward of:

- The gifts which are the people God has called together to form God's Church.
- God's love and compassion.
- Courage and encouragement.
- God's feast by sharing your stories, your time, your talent and your treasure.

ELCIC
*In Mission
for Others*

Take the time to talk with your pastor about how you can generously give of the gifts you have been given so that God's feast may be shared with other.

For more info go to: www.elcic.ca/stewardship